
Simulocity Announces New Contract with National Medical Fellowships

Orlando FL., Nov 20, 2023 - Simulocity, a leading business solutions company specializing in technological innovations, is delighted to announce its new contract with National Medical Fellowships (NMF). This partnership will bring together Simulocity's expertise in 3D and digital platforms with NMF's commitment to providing scholarships and service-learning programs for underrepresented students in medicine and behavioral health.

Simulocity has built a strong reputation for revolutionizing education proficiency through cutting-edge technological solutions with virtual platforms, gamification modules, and user research to ensure optimal program architecture. With their innovative use of 3D and integrated digital platforms, Simulocity has helped numerous organizations achieve unprecedented levels of success.

National Medical Fellowships (NMF) is a renowned organization dedicated to supporting Black, Indigenous, Latine, and People of Color students in the medical and behavioral health fields. NMF's mission to provide need-based and merit scholarships, coupled with service-learning programs, has been instrumental in empowering aspiring professionals and diversifying clinical research.

The partnership between Simulocity and NMF is poised to create synergistic opportunities for both organizations. By leveraging Simulocity's technological expertise and NMF's commitment to diversity and inclusion, this collaboration will foster innovation and drive positive change in the medical and behavioral health sectors.

"We are thrilled to join forces with National Medical Fellowships and contribute to their impactful mission," said Dr. Manny Dominguez, CEO of Simulocity. "Together, we aim to create transformative opportunities for underrepresented students and patients, shaping the future of medicine and behavioral health."
